-Restore plc press release-

Appointment of Steve Beardsall as Group IT Director

As part of Restore's investment and focus on technologies to enable our continued growth, we have created the new position of Group IT Director, working with all the Business Units to support our IT infrastructure requirements.

Steve Beardsall has been appointed to this newly created position. Within Steve's responsibilities as Group IT Director, he will be accountable to Charles Bligh, CEO and the Executive Committee, and he will also retain his responsibilities within Records Management for the Business Systems strategy and management. As such, Steve will report directly to Nigel Dews with a dual reporting line to Charles Bligh and the Executive Committee.

Restore are driving a high growth strategy and within these plans we need to significantly invest in technology – this may be to improve everyone's productivity/ease of doing their jobs, improving the security and speed of the systems, enhancing our portals and digital experience for our customers and flexible technology choices to enable the quick integration of acquired businesses.

"I am sure creating this new role will make a huge difference to deliver a faster transformation in the business and help deliver a better IT experience for all colleagues", says Charles Bligh, CEO. "I am delighted Steve will take on this role and help drive our strategy forward".

About Restore plc

Restore is formed of five business units, who together offer organisations a holistic approach to the management of their data, information, and assets. With over 55,000 active customers, 87 sites across the UK and 2,643 colleagues, Restore are either number one or number two across all five markets.

The company is fast growing, and help shape the conversation on information, data, and assets through #RestoreAnswers. Our team understand wider business trends due to the long-term relationships built across its large customer base. And the Executive Committee are often approached to provide comment on the latest UK business trends, particularly around data and assets.
